"...For culture is now experience, not instruction. The snag with the old culture was that it taught people what was right. The new culture requires each individual to choose for himself or herself what experience he or she will attempt. Culture now...is an expansion of horizons..."

The French, Zeldin T. Harvill. Lond. 1988 rev. 1997

"...We must learn wherever we can. But we can also offer something: not only the inimitable climate of our mind and spirit, not only the message we have mined from our historical experience, but - God willing - perhaps even an original way of breathing this character and experience into the newly laid foundations of our state, into the architecture of its institutions and the features of its culture...Our great, specific experience of recent times is the collapse of an ideology...we are on the threshold of an era...in which ideologies will be replaced by ideas..."

Summer Meditations. Václav Havel, President of the Czech Republic. Vintage NY, 1993

"Australia needs a stronger sense of its own identity. A stronger faith in its own judgement. A willingness to mix it with the neighbours. A spiritual dimension is crucial. Spiritual hunger is a feature of the modern world and it's usually resolved in escapist activities. Drugs, more than anything else. Drugs are taking sacraments for gods you don't know the names of..."
David Foster, Miles Franklin Awardee 1997.

Among the Barbarians - The Dividing of Australia. Sheehan P. Random House Sydney, 1998. P258-259

"...Your favourite fruit, you say.
They remind you of home,
Of summer in Canada,
Of being young and greedy...
Blueberries have no smell,
But their taste is fragrant and summery.
They taste like flowers would taste
In an edible universe:
A jolt of colour..."

Blueberries. (Stanzas only) Alvarez A. TLS 29 August 1997
